"Early in the Winter, I took a severe cold which developed into an obstinate, hacking cough, very painful to endure and troubling me day and night, for nine weeks, in spite of numerous remedies. Ayer's Cherry Pectoral being recommended me, I began to take it, and inside of 24 hours, I was relieved of the tickling in my throat. Before I finished the bottle, my cough was nearly gone. I cannot speak too highly of its excellence."—Mrs. E. BOSCH, Eaton, Ohio.

LOST HIS NERVE.

While the westward bound express was stopping at the Jericho station I noticed that the station master was in close conversation with the engine driver. This was an unusual act on his part, as he strictly upheld the dignity of his office and held no communication with engine drivers, except to hand them such telegraphic orders as he might happen to have received for them. So, after the train had departed and the station master had returned to his usual lounging place on the platform, I had asked him who was the man with whom he had been conversing.

"That man?" he replied. "That was Hank Stevens, the best engineer on this or any other road. I've known him for going on 20 years and have helped him to pull out from under three wrecked engines. He's quiet and careful enough nowadays, but there was a time when that there man was just the greatest hustler and the biggest daredevil that ever handled the throttle of an engine.

"There is nothing in the world," continued the station master, "that requires the nerve that engine driving requires. You may talk about your soldiers and your sailors, and I don't deny that they are a nervy lot, but they don't compare with an engineer. When they see themselves getting into a tight place, they have some time to look about them and to make up their minds what to do, but when an engineer, running, say, at 40 miles an hour, round a sharp curve, meets an engine coming his way on the same track he hasn't even time to cuss. All he can do is to reverse his engine, which most times is a big mistake, as I've heard our best engineers say, and either to jump and break his neck or to stay and be smashed. Of course the engineer in such circumstances isn't always killed, especially if he sticks to his engine; but, I tell you, it takes nerve to handle a lever and wait like an intelligent man when another engine is almost atop of you. Nine men out of ten would just drop on the floor of the cab and say the first bit of a prayer that they could lay a hand to.

"Speaking of nerve reminds me that there was an engineer on this road once who lost his nerve under very similar circumstances, and Hank Stevens was at the bottom of those circumstances, as you might say. It isn't at all uncommon for an engineer to lose his nerve. It may happen through having his spinal marrow hurt in an accident—at least that's what the doctors say—or it may be that he has been frightened once clean through, and when that happens he's done for. The least little thing will frighten a man who has had one good scare, and he knows it, and is always on the lookout for something that is going to scare him.

"There are men who will run an engine for 40 years, and then something will happen—some little thing perhaps like a collision, or going off a bridge, or the bursting of the boiler, and after that they are never fit to run even a cattle train. Now, this hyer Hank Stevens was at the time I am speaking of engineer of the engine that hauled the accommodation train between Athensville and Tiberius Centre, and Matt McGinnis was engineer of the express, being a man who had been 30 years in the company's service and was considered to have no superior in his line. He was a very nice, quiet sort of fellow, and he didn't like Hank's noisy and reckless ways, for there's no denying that Hank was reckless at times. I don't object to an engineer taking chances when there is anything to be made by it, but Hank just took a pleasure in running for a siding when he knew that he had only mebbe a minute to make it in, and that if he didn't make it, or if his watch happened to be a minute slow, another train would be into him.

"That's what I call recklessness, and I don't care who says it ain't. Well, every afternoon Hank's train used to meet the express. Going up he would meet her about 10 miles north of here, and going down he would meet her just a mile out of Spartansville. It was his duty to go on a siding and wait for the express, but when she was five minutes late Hank had the right of way, and could go ahead and require the express train to wait for him. You may bet your life he never waited more than the five minutes, and sometimes he would pull out when he could hear the express coming and make her back down to the next station.

"There was a girl somewhere on the line. I disremember just exactly where, though, come to think of it, she must have lived at Spartansville. No she couldn't either, for the accommodation never stopped the night there, and so Hank couldn't have spent his evening with her, which was his general rule. She must have lived at Tiberius Centre, where Hank laid up at night and where Matt McGinnis lived when he was at home. Well, any way, we'll say she lived there, and it isn't of any consequence where she lived so far as this hyer story is concerned.

"Both the men were dead in love with the girl, and she didn't seem disposed to make up her mind which of the two she liked best. Hank used to come to see her pretty near every evening at about 8 o'clock, and Matt used to spend most of the two hours he had in Tiberius Centre every day from 1:30 to 4:34 at her house. As far as I could judge, Matt was making a little the best headway, for he always had the girl to himself when he called, while when Hank was there in the evening her father and mother were apt to be on hand.

"Hank was terribly jealous of Matt, and he never lost a chance to make things unpleasant for him on the road. He would pull out from the siding where he had been waiting for the express a minute before she was due, and when he met her he would show his watch, which he had shoved on until she was two or three minutes fast, and stick to it that she was right. Reasoning with him wouldn't do any good. There was his train on the track, and he wouldn't budge an inch, so the express would have to back down, and Hank would remark to Matt that if he didn't get a new watch he would come to grief some day.

"Why didn't he complain to the superintendent? So he did, but when the superintendent called Hank up and questioned him Hank's watch was exactly right, and he stuck to his story till the superintendent believed him, and he began to think that Matt was getting a little too old and too careless. This wouldn't have made much odds to Matt if it hadn't been that he found himself wondering if possibly Hank's watch was right, and if he himself was beginning to show signs of failing. This is just what Hank was working for, for he had sworn that he would make Matt lose his nerve, providing Matt got the better of him with the girl.

"Then Hank took to halting his train on a down grade and informed the conductor that his engine wasn't working just right and required a little repairing. He would make a big show of unscrewing a nut here and easing a valve there, and then he would oil her and spill a lot of oil on the rails. When the express came a-groaning and a-panting and a-puffing up the hill, her driving wheels would strike the oil and slip, and the train would be stuck long enough to make her come into the next station 10 minutes or so behind time. Matt knew well enough that Hank was playing it on him, but he couldn't prove anything, don't you see, and all he could do was to swear and take the reprimands that he got without attempting to defend himself.

"After awhile the girl made up her mind, and she took Matt. I don't blame her, for though he was pretty old for her he was a good man, with considerable cash in the bank and a big life insurance policy, while Hank hadn't a cent beyond his pay and was liable from his reckless ways to be smashed almost any day. Of course Matt was in high spirits over his success, and Hank was correspondingly nasty. The first time the two met Matt says: 'Look here, Hank Stevens, I've had about enough of your games, and I'm not going to give you the right of way many more times, when you know as well as I do that you are not entitled to it. Some day you'll pull out of that siding ahead of time once too often.'

"'What are you proposing for to do in the premises?' says Hank, who had a fine command of language, and could be most deadly polite when he wanted to be.

"'I propose,' says Matt, 'for to open my throttle and smash your dirty little accommodation train into 5,000,000 splinters and you with it. That's what I intend to do, and what I ought to have done long ago, only I had a weak sort of feeling for your passengers.'

"'All right,' says Hank. 'You come along with your bullyragging old express and try to smash me if you want to. We'll see who will come out on the top of the heap. I've generally got about two carloads of coal just behind my engine, and I cal'late you'll have some little trouble driving through them.'

"Now, Hank knew well enough that Matt meant what he said. Matt was, as I have told you, a mighty careful and conscientious man, but you could drive him too far, and he had certainly made up his mind to run into Hank's train if it kept getting in his way, and I don't blame him. However, he never did run into Hank's train, though he thought he did, but Hank worked a little game on him that left him with no more nerve than a race horse that is frightened by a bit of paper and thinks it's going to rise up and tear him all to pieces.

"About a week went by, and Hank never crowded the express off the track except once, and he did that when Matt's girl was on the train, and that he naturally wouldn't scare her by a collision. The very fact that the girl was there at the time made it all the harder for Matt to back his train down and give Hank the right of way, for she supposed that Matt had made some sort of mistake in his calculations and had endangered her precious life. So the next time the two men met, which was the very next day, Matt sings out: 'You've done that trick for the last time. You do it again, and I swear solemnly, world without end, that I'll run you down.'

"'Please yourself,' says Hank, and then he saw that the time had come for carrying out a plan that he had devised for destroying Matt's usefulness.

"A week, or mebbe 10 days, or mebbe a fortnight later, the express came round a sharp curve near Antioch about 7 o'clock at night, and precious dark it was, too, at that time of year. Matt was two hours late, owing to a freight train having got on the track ahead of him, and he had received a telegram ordering him to pass the accommodation five miles east of Antioch, where she would wait for him on the siding. Matt was running at about 45 miles an hour, trying to make up a little time, and he kept wondering whether Hank would wait for him on that siding or would pull out and come along down the road just so as to delay the express an hour or so longer. 'If he does,' says Matt to himself, loud enough for the fireman to hear him, 'there'll be the biggest smash that this road has seen this year. Just at that minute the express swung around the curve, and there was an engine on the track not more than 40 yards ahead. Her headlight was blazing away, and right under it Matt could read the number of Hank's engine, which was No. 34, unless I am mistaken. I remember it because it was the engine that used to haul the train that I was baggage master of a year before this hyer incident happened.

"'There he is,' says Matt, 'and he's done it once too often.'

"With that he pulls her wide open and stands to his post. The express engine gave a big jump and fairly sprang onto No. 34—that is, of course, unless I'm mistaken in thinking it was 34, and I don't believe I am. Still a man can't always trust his memory, and I know that mine ain't what it once was.

"Well, the two engines came together, and Matt, he shut his eyes for a minute, for in such circumstances a man can't very well help winking. To his tremendous astonishment there wasn't so much as a jar, let alone a crash. No. 34—yes, I remember now, that was her number—just sort of opened out, as you might say, and seemed to fall in pieces on each side of Matt's engine. There wasn't a train of any sort behind 34, and the express went on her way rejoicing.

"Matt turns to the fireman with a face as white as a consumptive parson's, and says he:

"'Jim, did you see that engine?'

"'Never saw anything plainer in my life,' says Jim, 'but it wasn't no engine. That was a ghost if ever there was one.'

"'We ran through it,' says Matt 'as easy as if it was a fog bank Well, if ever I get this train to Tiberius Centre somebody else will have to take her back.'

"They do say that when the express came into Tiberius Centre that night Matt had to be helped off the engine and helped to his house and a doctor sent for. The doctor said the man was suffering from a severe nervous shock and must keep perfectly quiet. Matt he sent in his resignation the very next day and never drove an engine on our road afterward.

"He hung round drinking middling hard and keeping quiet, according to the doctor's orders, for about a month, and then he got a berth on the Montana Southern road. But he wasn't of the slightest use. His nerves were clean gone. He'd think he saw things on the track when there was nothing but mebbe a moonbeam, and he'd call for brakes and stop his train and have the biggest kind of job in trying to tell the conductor what he had stopped the train for. The company dismissed him after about six months, and Matt gave up railroading and is now driving a truck in Chicago.

"I don't know whether he knows the trick Hank played on him or not, but this was the way of it: Hank spent a lot of money in Chicago for a pasteboard engine, made to look exactly like No. 34 and provided with a genuine headlight all complete. Then he had this hyer Quaker engine set up on the track just round a curve at a time when he knew that the only train which could possibly come along would be the express. Of course he had several fellows engaged in the thing with him, but Hank was a mighty popular chap with the boys, and he could always find help enough for any game that he might want to carry out.

"Of course the express engine went through the pasteboard concern without even feeling it, and I don't blame Matt for believing it was a ghost, especially as he had the fireman to back him in that opinion.

"I don't justify Hank, for I always considered that he played it altogether too low down on Matt, and Hank allows that he did, now that he is older and has come to look at things rationally. I don't think it's the sort of thing he'd do now, though of course the heart is deceitful and desperately wicked, as the good book says.

"What's that you say? Never heard that a locomotive could have a ghost? Well, all I can say is that if you were a railroad man you would know that ghosts of engines and ghosts of whole trains, sleeping cars and all, have been seen time and again by railroad men. If I had time now, I'd tell you of a ghost train that used to run on this very road, and that I've seen with my own identical, individual eyes. You go railroading for 20 or 30 years, and you'll know a sight of things that you'll never know any other way."—St. Louis Republic.

POLITICAL POINTS.

And now some of the Democrats are saying that it matters not who is elected Congressman, this district is bound to be represented by a Republican.

The Democrats have nominated Jas. H. Budd of Stockton for Governor. He is one of the strongest men the Democrats could have put forward for the office.

Nominations for Constables and Justices of the Peace for Sonoma Township will be made by both Democrats and Republicans some time during the present month.

Allen Bryant of Santa Rosa, who was defeated for a renomination for Treasurer at the recent Republican convention, will be an independent candidate for the office. He is now engaged in circulating a petition with that object in view.

Wm. Longmore, the well-known Democratic candidate for Assessor of Sonoma county, was in town last Thursday. In again asking the people for their suffrages he points with pride to the excellent manner in which he has conducted the affairs of the office the past eight years. His political card appears in another column.

The card of A. J. Atchinson, Republican nominee for Auditor and Recorder, appears in another column. Mr. Atchinson is a merchant and resident of Petaluma and is in every way competent to fill the position which the Republicans of Sonoma county have put him forward for. Mr. Atchinson's Democratic opponent will have to get an extraordinary move on in order to defeat him.

Lyman Green, the Republican nominee for District Attorney of Sonoma county, announces himself in another column. Mr. Green is a rising young lawyer of Petaluma and if elected will serve the people faithfully and well. As proof of his popularity in this township we will state that he received the solid vote of the Sonoma delegation in the Healdsburg convention. He is the strongest man his party could have put up for the office.

According to the record as published by the Examiner Controller Colgan has been fairer to the interests of the people as a member of the State Board of Equalization than R. H. Beamer of Yolo. Beamer has the reputation amongst the newspapers of being the only member of the Board of Equalization who has been true to his trust. Outside of Colgan, Beamer's reputation has perhaps a basis of truth, yet the Sonoma man must be given credit for being less of a railroad man than the Yolo member. The records show it.

Editor Brackett of Sebastopol says: "The Times will be conducted as a strictly independent newspaper throughout the campaign. Any candidate may gain admittance to these columns in the same manner that he can obtain a barrel of sugar, a box of peaches or a drink of whisky. Advertising space is what we make a living from and any one is privileged to buy it. Therefore if "your candidate" is not represented in this paper it is because he has not taken advantage of the opportunity which is open to all."

That the voters of Sonoma and Vallejo Townships may know that he is in the field for re-election District Attorney Seawell's political card appears in these columns today. Lawyer Seawell has filled the office of prosecuting attorney for Sonoma county the past two years with ability and has been a terror to evil-doers. In tendering him the nomination unanimously the Democratic convention did a graceful act toward a conscientious official.

GLEN ELLEN.

J. Wegner of this place recently sold 4,000 gallons of wine and is now busy shipping the same.

Last Sunday was the warmest day of the season, the thermometer registering 112 degrees in the shade.

Quite a number of our people have gone to the upper part of the county for the purpose of picking hops.

Wine men are busy preparing for the coming vintage. The yield of grapes promises to be fully up to the average.

Roadmaster Kearney is authority for the assertion that an earthquake quaked in the still hours of last Sunday night.

The atmosphere hereabouts has been smoky the past few days owing to the many forest fires in this vicinity.

A newspaper and a bank are two of the uncertain additions spoken of which are to be part and parcel to this town some time in the near future.

Jas. Shaw, Jas. S. Pieratt and Wm. Earnest returned home last Saturday after a successful deer hunt in the mountains of Mendocino county.

R. A. Poppe, Mrs. R. L. Watt, Mrs. Harper and Miss O. Copeland of Sonoma passed through town last Monday en route to Santa Rosa on legal business.

A fire started on the farm of R. E. Hunter in Bennett Valley last Monday. Owing to the timely arrival and effective work of neighbors it was put out before any damage was done.

Joe Waddington, who takes a daily swim in the placid waters of Sonoma Creek, while in the act of diving from the bank of that stream last Tuesday was slightly injured by striking his head on the bottom of the creek.

A Good Thing to Keep at Hand.

From the Troy (Kansas) Chief.

Some years ago we were subjected to severe spells of cholera morbus; and now when we feel any of the symptoms that usually precede that ailment, such as sickness at the stomach, diarrhœa, etc., we become scary. We have found Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhœa Remedy the very thing to straighten one out in such cases, and always keep it about. We are not writing this for a pay testimonial, but to let our readers know what is a good thing to keep handy in the house. For sale by all dealers.

Schocken always keeps on hand a complete stock of fresh groceries and dry goods. *

Buckingham's dye for the whiskers is the best, handiest, safest, surest, cleanest, most economical and satisfactory dye ever invented. It is the gentlemen's favorite.

The meals to be had at the Sonoma House, now kept by Mr. and Mrs. Harry Fisheer, are the best to be had in any hotel north of San Francisco. *

Walter T. Baker, who died in San Francisco last Tuesday, was one of the organizers and the first President of the Columbia Athletic Club of Sonoma.

The Union Hotel bar, under the supervision of A. A. Enke, will be supplied with the very best of wines, whiskeys and cigars to be had in the market. *

For Dry Goods, Clothing, Groceries, Hardware, Cutlery and also everything kept in a general merchandise store go to Schocken's, north side Plaza, Sonoma. *

Jacob Frideger Jr. killed a three-point buck last Sunday in the Hooker canyon. The fleet-footed animal was shot with a Winchester rifle while on the dead run. He was a beauty and weighed 115 pounds.

Mr. and Mrs. V. B. Cook, previous to their departure for Arkansas, deeded their 360-acre mountain ranch to their son-in-law John A. Beasley. The deed was recorded in Santa Rosa last Monday.

The Union Hotel dining rooms since the recent change of proprietorship, have undergone a change for the better. Under the supervision of Mrs. S. E. Jones the tables are all that could be desired by the most fastidious epicure. *

Fred. L. Clark, the undertaker, has filed a claim of $104 in the Probate Court of this county against the estate of the late Chas. W. Engelbert. Claims have also been filed in the same court against the Graves estate as follows: Dr. H. H. Davis, $6; Dr. W. K. Vance, $25; Fred. L. Clark, $53.

Paul Sonognini was acquitted by a jury in Judge Cheney's Court last Saturday on a charge of battery upon Mrs. Gubbi. The plaintiff swore that Sonognini had struck her at her home on First-street West, but he proved that at the time of the alleged assault he was in another part of town.

Prof. J. R. Watson, formerly principal of the Sonoma public school, but now residing near Guerneville, is at the head of the relief committee organized to afford temporary relief to the destitute families in that place. All donations of money or provisions will be thankfully received by that gentleman.

If you want to prosper own your own house and stop paying rent. We offer a modern built two-story seven-room residence on one of the principal streets of Sonoma. Lot 50x150. Will be sold for $1,200 on the following terms: Five hundred dollars down and balance in three years at 7 per cent. The house cost $1,800. For further particulars apply at this office.

Messrs. Carl Dresel, Jas. Pieratt and Jas. A. Shaw have returned from a two week's hunting and camping trip in the northern part of the county. The party, which was composed of seven in addition to those mentioned above, killed fourteen deer besides a quantity of small game. They made their camp on the Robt. Hood ranch, twenty miles northwest of Cloverdale.

Supervisor P. H. Thompson was called to Santa Rosa last Monday to take some action in regard to extending county aid to the Guerneville people who were rendered destitute by the late fire in that town. No action was taken by the Supervisors as that body has no authority to hold a special meeting for such a purpose. At the regular meeting of the Board next Monday, however, a number of the sufferers will no doubt be put upon the indigent list of the county.

Sunday Morning Row.

Joe Caneva, an inebriated Swiss, attempted to clean out the Swiss Hotel last Sunday morning. He attacked the proprietor, F. Pezzaglia, and for a time he made things quite lively. Canava, however, was finally thrown out of the house and arrested by officers Griffith and Robin. On the following day he appeared before Judge Cheney and plead guilty to battery and was fined $30 by his honor. Louis Foutts, who was with Caneva when he made the sortie on the Swiss Hotel, was also placed under arrest, charged with disturbing the peace. The case of the latter was called in Judge Cheney's Court Thursday, but as no lawyer could be found to prosecute the accused, the Judge in disgust dismissed the case.

Off for China.

Charley Hoy, proprietor of one of the largest Chinese laundries in this city, left for China last Monday. Charley upon his arrival in the Flowery Kingdom will enlist under the dragon flag to fight for his country in the present war between China and Japan. He will no doubt secure an officer's commission as he talks the English language quite fluently and is pretty well up in the rudiments of an English common school education. As he expects to return to Sonoma when peace will have been declared between the two countries, provided his head is not chopped off, he did not dispose of his interest in the laundry business, which will be conducted by one of his partners.

Important to Pedro Players.

The new tariff law passed by Congress and which went into effect last Monday imposes a tax of two cents on each pack of playing cards in the hands of either a manufacturer or dealer on the first of last month. The new law requires all dealers to make a sworn statement of the number of packs of playing cards on hand last Monday, which statement must be sent to the Internal Revenue officers of the district in which the dealer is engaged in business.

Fatal Fire at Guerneville.

On Saturday afternoon last Guerneville, situated on Russian River, sixteen miles northwest of Santa Rosa, was almost completely destroyed by fire. Every store in the town and nearly every dwelling house was licked up by the flames. While the fire was raging two well-known citizens of the doomed town, Dr. Burns and Oscar McKean, were killed by the falling walls of a brick building. The loss will exceed $100.000. This is the fourth time Guerneville has been wiped out by fire during the past ten years.

Acquitted.

Harry Thorn, well-known in this place, who shot and killed in self-defense the notorious Frank Northey in San Francisco, about two years ago, had his second trial in Judge Belcher's Court in that city last Tuesday and was acquitted. On the first trial the jury disagreed, standing eight for acquittal and four for conviction. Ever since the killing Thorn has been out on bail.

Whew!

Last Sunday and Monday were the two warmest days ever experienced in Sonoma Valley. The thermometer on the latter day went up to 112 degrees in the shade. As late as eight o'clock in the evening on Monday the thermometer in the INDEX-TRIBUNE office, which is a hard-finished building, recorded 100 degrees. The intense heat caused fruit of all kinds to ripen very rapidly and many of the vineyards suffered by the sun burning the unripe grapes.

B. Toroni Dead.

B. Toroni, for many years a resident of Sonoma and proprietor of the Tecino Hotel, died last Sunday morning after an illness of several weeks. The deceased was a native of Switzerland and aged 62 years. He leaves a wife and four children in easy circumstances. The funeral took place Monday afternoon the remains being laid to rest in Mountain Cemetery.

The John Harper Estate.

Margaret M. Harper, widow of the late John Harper, who was recently killed by being thrown from his wagon, has been appointed by Judge Crawford administratrix of the estate with bonds fixed at $2,500. Robert A. Poppe of this place is the attorney for the estate.

Fruit for the East.

Twenty carloads of pears and plums have been shipped East so far this season by J. F. Farnsworth, representing Porter Bros. For the most part the shipments were made from Schellville station on the line of the Southern Pacific.

THE WINE SYNDICATE.

A Hitch in the Plan to Handle the Grape Crop.

Why the Options on Vineyards Were Allowed to Lapse.

The wine syndicate recently formed to control and handle the product of California vineyards is having considerable trouble in its attempt to carry out the plan of the originators of the syndicate. The San Francisco Post of last Wednesday says that "Clarence G. Wetmore, P. C. Rossi and the other members of the committee of seven appointed some months ago to make a canvass of the State with a view of seeing what support could be obtained for the great wine syndicate then proposed agreed to hold a meeting last Tuesday for the purpose of determining what further they should do. As one of the members of the committee explained it, they have of late been occupying a rather unsatisfactory position before the wine-growers of the State, as the result, as they claim, however, of no fault of their own.

"It appears that about the most important work done by the members of the committee when organized was to travel through the grape-growing sections of the State and "talk up" the project for placing the entire crop under the control of one company, the great object in view, as was explained, being to make it possible to secure better prices to growers for their wines.

"The members of the committee appear to have done their work pretty well. They held meetings here, there and everywhere in the wine districts, and not only convinced the great majority of the vineyardists of the advantages of what was proposed, but induced a great many of them to grant to the canvassing committee, as the representative of the corporation that was to be, options upon their crops. In point of fact, it is understood that something like 70 per cent of the entire yield was covered by these agreements.

"The members of the committee obtained the options on a certain schedule of rates, such as they understood they had been authorized to offer.

"But when in due time the wine syndicate, which has lately incorporated, was organized those interested in the enterprise did not seem to favor paying such rates as those which had been offered. Further than this they were inclined to insist on a guarantee of all, or nearly all, the crop of the State as a condition of handling any of it. Finally the matter settled itself, after a fashion, by the fact that the date, August 10th, up to which the options were given, arrived and passed without anything being done, which, of course, practically nullified what had been done by the canvassing committee and released the growers from the agreements into which they had entered.

"More recently, last week, in fact, the members of the wine syndicate published a list of the prices they would be willing to pay, these rates averaging something like 20 per cent less than those which the canvassers had mentioned in their negotiations with the growers. More than this, the syndicate managers desire to be guaranteed 80 per cent of the entire yield as a condition of taking any of it.

"To this last provision the growers are said to object even more strenuously than they do at the cut in prices. They argue that they cannot afford to let their crops lie for an indefinite period without knowing whether they will finally get rid of them at the agreed rates or have to look up another customer at the last moment.

"The members of the canvassing committee hope that some acceptable proposition will be made by the wine syndicate which they can lay before the wine growers in lieu of that first presented them. The canvassers are inclined to think that if something of the kind is not done the syndicate will not be able to handle any wine this year, though the organization which has been formed will, of course, be all ready for business next season."

Forest Fire.

A fierce forest fire, which is raging in the mountains to the north and west of Sonoma, enveloped the town in smoke all day yesterday. Owing to the denseness of the atmosphere it is impossible to locate the fire, which may be close at hand or miles away.

Among the incidents of childhood that stand out in bold relief, as our memory reverts to the days when we were young, none are more prominent than severe sickness. The young mother vividly remembers that it was Chamberlain's Cough Remedy that cured her of croup, and in turn administers it to her own offspring and always with the best results. For sale by all dealers.

The many friends of Walter T. Baker, the well-known photographer, who for over a year conducted a photograph business in Sonoma, will be surprised to learn of his death which occurred at his home in San Francisco last Tuesday, the 18th inst. The deceased was aged 39 years and a native of New Jersey. He leaves a wife and three little boys to mourn the loss of a kind father and husband. The hand of fate has dealt hard with this family since leaving Sonoma about one year ago. Only a few months ago death claimed their only daughter, a bright girl of 14 years, and now the father has been called to that bourne from whence no traveler ever returns. Surely this poor wife and mother has the sympathy of all in her sad bereavement.

Architecture of the Future.

The Eiffel tower, built wholly of metal, is an example, and a good example, of a step in the direction which architects will be forced to follow in the future. The great railway stations, exhibition buildings and other structures of steel, concrete, paper and glass, which the needs and inventions of our day have called into existence, show which way flows the stream of tendency. The new building material has come to stay. In another century houses may not merely be built with steel girders; they may be made of metal frames bolted together and gripping walls of papier mache. Then the age of the tent will return. A man will buy his house from a manufacturer and will hire a site to set it upon. When he moves from one place to another, he will take his home with him. Building leases will die a natural death. Towns will wander about, and a great many curious results will arise.—Boston Transcript.

A Letter From Carlyle.

The following letter was written in 1866 by Thomas Carlyle to a doubting young lady who had sought advice:

DEAR YOUNG LADY—Your appeal to me is very touching, and I am heartily sorry for you if I could but help at all. Herein, as in many other cases, the "patient must minister to himself." Were your duties never so small, I advise you, set yourself with double and treble energy and punctuality to do them hour after hour, day after day, in spite of the devil's teeth. That is our one answer to all inward devils, as they used to be called. "This I can do, O devil, and I do it, thou seest, in the name of God." Were it but the more perfect regulation of your apartments, the sorting away of your clothes and trinkets, the arranging of your papers, "whatsoever thy hand findeth to do do it with thy might" and all thy worth and constancy. Much more, if your duties are of evidently higher, wider scope; if you have brothers, sisters, a father, a mother, weigh earnestly what claim does lie upon you on behalf of each, and consider it as the one thing needful to pay them more and more honestly and nobly what you owe. What matter how miserable one is if one can do that?

SONOMA INDEX - TRIBUNE.

SONOMA, SATURDAY, SEPT. 1, 1894.

THE KING IS DYING.

Fool, stand back; the king is dying;
Give him what little air remains.
See'st thou not how his pulse is flying?
Hear'st thou not how he gasps and strains
To catch one other stertorous breath?
God! how he labors! Yes, this is death!

Blow up the fire—his feet are cold;
Aye, though a king, he cannot buy
One briefest moment with all his gold.
His hour has come, and he must die.
Withered and wrinkled and old and gray,
The king fares out on the common way.

Light the tapers; he's almost gone;
Stir, thou fool, 'tis past the hour
To cower and cringe and flatter and fawn—
The thing lying there is shorn of power;
Henceforth the lips of the king are dumb;
Bring up thy ghostly viaticum.

Absolve his soul; need enough, God wot!
Mumble and sprinkle and do thy shriving;
Yet, methinks, here and there will be left a blot,
Hideously foul, despite thy shriving.
Nor purfled quilts nor pillows of lace
Can relieve the guilt in the grim old face.

Fool! stand back—it is his last.
Get hence; thy priestly craft is o'er.
For him the pomp of the world is past—
The king that was is king no more.
Let the bells be rung, let the mass be said,
And the king's heir know that the king is dead.
—J. B. Keynon in Seattle Post-Intelligencer.

THE "PLUMPER" UP TO DATE.

It Is a Cheeky Bluff, but It Raises Out Unattractive Facial Contours.

"No woman," said a dentist the other day, "need have sunken cheeks nowadays, and any one of the sex is foolish if she continues to maintain a facial defect that can readily be remedied."

"What's the remedy?" asked a curious man who heard the remark.

"Why, the plumper, of course," was the laconic reply.

"And what is the plumper?"

"It is a dental device that throws the sunken cheek outward, giving it an attractive plumpness. Plumpers were made years ago, before the improvements of modern dentistry, but the modern plumper doesn't at all resemble the old fashioned article.

"These old fashioned plumpers were plates to which were attached concave disks. The plate fitted into the roof of the mouth so that the disk pressed against the inside of the cheek and threw it outward, imparting the appearance of plumpness.

"This old disk has been entirely done away with nowadays, and in its stead is a plate with an artificial gum which throws the cheek out. The sinking of the cheeks is usually due to the recession of the natural gum, caused by the loss of teeth, but sometimes the cheek is naturally sunken, even when the teeth are intact. The insertion of a plumper into the mouth will instantly remove this facial defect.

"Most dentists make plumpers to order for patients, but they can be bought for a trifling sum at any manufactory of dental materials. They are generally made of rubber, although celluloid, and in some instances gold, is the material used in the manufacture.

"The method of manufacture is simple. An impression of the roof of the mouth and the gums is taken in wax. A mold is made from the impression and the mold used in making the plumper plate. Where the natural gum is sunken the plate is simply filled out, so that when it is inserted in the mouth it will throw the cheek outward. The plate is held in place by suction. As a rule, plumpers are made with artificial teeth also, although if the patient desires the plate alone is made.

"Where the jaw has been broken or is misshapen, as the result of an accident, the plumper proves very effective in removing the facial defect.

"The value of the device is that it cannot be detected upon a minute examination of the interior of the mouth. It does not interfere at all with articulation or the mastication of food. Plumpers are used by some actresses, who are aware of their value as a beautifier of the mouth and cheeks."—New York Sun.

A Hearse His Family Carriage.

"Indians can be induced to buy anything when they have money," said C. L. Seuter. "At Waggoner, I. T., I saw a family of Indians, dressed in the brightest colors and the brave, with a stovepipe hat, riding on top of as handsome a hearse as I ever saw. Upon inquiry I learned that he had received a considerable sum of money a few months before and made up his mind that he wanted some fine blankets for his family and a carriage. The agent to whom he went for the vehicle showed him a catalogue, and the picture of a hearse struck the red man as the finest thing there was there. It cost $1,000, but the Indian had the money and cared nothing for the expense, so the grewsome equipage is now a common sight in that locality, with the family riding on top."—Cincinnati Enquirer.

It Didn't Work.

"John," said the poet's wife, "another of your poems has appeared."

"Well?" he replied.

"Oh, nothing, only I was thinking how well 'sonnet' rhymes with 'new bonnet.'"

"Yes, that's so. And so does 'stanza' rhyme with 'bonanza,' but it ain't one by a whole lot."—Indianapolis Journal.

What is CASTORIA

Castoria is Dr. Samuel Pitcher's prescription for Infants and Children. It contains neither Opium, Morphine nor other Narcotic substance. It is a harmless substitute for Paregoric, Drops, Soothing Syrups, and Castor Oil. It is Pleasant. Its guarantee is thirty years' use by Millions of Mothers. Castoria destroys Worms and allays feverishness. Castoria prevents vomiting Sour Curd, cures Diairrhœa and Wind Colic. Castoria relieves teething troubles, cures constipation and flatulency. Castoria assimilates the food, regulates the stomach and bowels, giving healthy and natural sleep. Castoria is the Children's Panacea—the Mother's Friend.

Castoria.

"Castoria is an excellent medicine for children. Mothers have repeatedly told me of its good effect upon their children."
DR. G. C. OSGOOD, Lowell, Mass.

"Castoria is the best remedy for children of which I am acquainted. I hope the day is not far distant when mothers will consider the real interest of their children, and use Castoria instead of the various quack nostrums which are destroying their loved ones, by forcing opium, morphine, soothing syrup and other hurtful agents down their throats, thereby sending them to premature graves."
DR. J. F. KINCHELOE, Conway, Ark.

Castoria.

"Castoria is so well adapted to children that I recommend it as superior to any prescription known to me."
H. A. ARCHER, M. D., 111 So. Oxford St., Brooklyn, N. Y.

"Our physicians in the children's department have spoken highly of their experience in their outside practice with Castoria, and although we only have among our medical supplies what is known as regular products, yet we are free to confess that the merits of Castoria has won us to look with favor upon it."

His Contribution.

"I suppose," said the advance agent, "that you have heard of Joseph Brooks, who manages W. H. Crane. Well, Brooks is forever doing things which make people laugh at him. One time awhile ago there was a benefit for the Lamb's club, and the committee which had the affair in charge opened what they called a 'contribution book.' This was circulated among the people in the profession, and those who wished to give anything wrote their names in the book and the article or sum of money contributed. Somebody, history does not record his name, wrote, 'I contribute one magnum.'

"The next person who got the book was Brooks. He looked the contributions over, and that magnum struck him as a pretty tart thing. So he wrote: 'I also contribute one magnum. W. H. Crane, under the management of Joseph Brooks.' A member of the club saw the inscription, and meeting Brooks said, 'Hello, Joe; I see you and Crane have contributed a magnum for the benefit.'

"'Yes,' said Brooks, 'I intend to give a magnum if there is one to be shot in this part of the country.' He had an idea that a magnum was a sort of fowl evidently, and until this day he does not know why the Lambs guy him about that contribution."—Buffalo Express.

Typhus Vaccination.

Professor Frankel of Berlin has announced that he has discovered not only the bacillus of typhus fever, but also that, by using an attenuated culture of it by vaccination, he has been able to produce a rapid, benign course of this dangerous and deadly fever. Fast on the heels of this news comes the report that Professor Rumpf has cultivated an antifever bacillus which will cure typhus in eight days. The latter discovery is an extraordinary one, not altogether unlooked for. If the present bacillus theory be true, for every disease germ there exists a natural antidote in the shape of another germ whose function is to eat up the other or to destroy its effect by rendering the subject "immune."

Heretofore M. Pasteur has been the only successful discoverer along this line, with the memorable exception, of course, of Dr. Jenner. In swine and splenic fevers and in rabies, M. Pasteur has found the appropriate antidote, but it would not be strange if the material progress of medical knowledge during the next generation were directed to the discovery of bacillus cures for all the specific diseases known to man.—Exchange.

Pure Oxygen.

A number of processes for the manufacture of pure oxygen from air have appeared recently, all following in a general way the suggestions of the well known "Brin" process. Herr G. Kassner, in The Chemiker Zeitung, claims a superiority for a salt of calcium, the calcium plumbate, Ca_3PbO_4, his process being briefly as follows: The plumbate in spongy porous pieces is exposed to the action of moist furnace gases which have previously been well washed. Carbonic acid is absorbed by the calcium salt with decomposition, forming calcium carbonate and free peroxide of lead.

This decomposition is unaccompanied by a change of form. The resulting mass is transferred to a strong retort heated to redness. Oxygen is disengaged and the evolution facilitated by a stream of superheated steam. Finally carbonic acid is given off, and in the last stages this is pure. In the intermediate stage the gases are passed over calcium plumbate and the carbonic acid there absorbed, leaving the oxygen pure.—Science.

Lost and Found.

A man in this city recently found a $5 goldpiece in a store, and a clerk endeavored to persuade him to turn it over to the proprietor. The man refused to do so, and the floorwalker showed him a rule of the establishment relating to lost property. The man still refused, claiming that the proprietors of the store might make for their employees what regulations they pleased with regard to lost property, but that such rules could not be made binding on the public. Abstractly he was right. Property that has been lost belongs to the finder until the owner appears and proves his ownership. It does not matter so far as the merits of the case are concerned whether the property be found in a store, in the street or in the desert. The finder has a right to it that precludes all claim but that of the proved owner.—St. Louis Globe-Democrat.

What's In a Name.

"Maybe I have an ugly color, as you say," said the Carrot to the Beet, "but when I am gone I hope some one may say a good word for me. It seems to me a dead carrot has a better chance for respect than a dead beet."

And the beet turned even redder in the face and had nothing more to say.—Philadelphia Times.

When He Might Call.

"I should like to know when you are going to pay that bill. I can't come here every day in the week."

"What day would suit you best?"

"Saturday."

"Very well, then, you can call every Saturday."—Petit Parisien.

CAMPING AT Sweet Brier Camp

A New and Beautiful MOUNTAIN RETREAT.

In the Vicinity of Castle Crags & Mt. Shasta.

Read what the Rev. Dr. J. K. McLean, Pastor of the First Congregational Church, Oakland, says of it:

Hazel Creek, April 14, '94.

* * * I am more than pleased with it—delighted. The place seems to me to embody all available points for a camp—dry, firm soil, good water (the very best), fine chances for drainage, and scenery unsurpassable. The view of Mt. Shasta is one of the very best to be had from any point; it is visible from every part of the ground. The view of the Crags also is fine. The general environment is of the best. It is an oval-shaped amphitheater, three miles long by one-fourth to ¾ of a mile wide, with receding walls two to three thousand feet in height, with lines and shades of beauty at every reach. I doubt if a better place can be found in all Northern California.
